precedence over any other and, foreign rule had no place in their lands. They were, and for those still alive, are Pan-Africanists to the core who believed and still believe in the unity of Africans across the globe. African unity, as they were known to promote, is the indispensable tool that would ensure the continent attains total freedom – political, economic and social liberation from colonization.

As far as these Icons were concerned, the interest of their countries took precedence over any other and, foreign rule had no place in their lands. They were, and for those still alive, are Pan-Africanists to the core who believed and still believe in the unity
